

BIO

A young and colourful soul driven by creativity, Alexia Trif is a singer, songwriter and co-producer of her own songs.

Her energy and enthusiasm while she performs along with her friendly and positive spirit bring people together and inspire them to be creative and never give up on their dreams.

Although she can approach a wide range of music styles, teen pop, pop dance, hip-hop and R&B are the ones that resonate with her personality and define her the most.

Growing up in Romania, her love for music started at an early age when listening to Romanian folklore which is now a significant source of inspiration for Alexia. Following a series of awards at typical music contests, the singer-songwriter stepped into the popular music area after discovering Britney Spears and Michael Jackson's music. Their artistry motivated her to create a music band with her friends, invent choreographies and design original costumes for their concerts.

Her curiosity and desire to expand her skills brought her to the High School of Arts where she studied opera. Being taught and supported by her vocal coach there, she won third place at the Romanian Olympics for classical music in 2016.

Things took a big turn for Alexia when after graduation, she moved to London with her boyfriend to continue her studies at University of West London. The artist made her first steps into the music industry after her breakup, which inspired her to write her first songs. The hard time she had is reflected in her singles through lyrics, melody and visuals.

Also she revealed at an interview with Buzz Music that shortly after she wrote her first tunes the couple got back together, and now they are working and producing new songs. Alexia has five singles and three music videos released so far created exclusively by her and her lover. Many more promising projects are on the way to be announced soon.
